WHAT THREAD DO YOU USE

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT!

The Dawn of a New Era in the History of Machine Threads.

It is with the greatest satisfaction that we are enabled to call the attention of the People of New England to the C. S. I. COTTON THREAD now being manufactured by the WILLSTON MILLS. This thread is made expressly for Family Use, and SOLD BY WEIGHT, each spool containing one ounce, exclusive of weight of spool. It is made from the very best COMBED SEA ISLAND COTTON, manufactured on the most improved machinery, in mills built at a cost of $1,000,000. We do not hesitate to warrant it equal in strength, superior in smoothness, and cheaper (quality and weight considered) than any so called 200 yard spool Cotton in the market, whether Imported or American.

We confidently believe that its introduction is destined to create a revolution in the "COTTON WORLD," as a stern and impartial test of same by the most competent authority fully justified the best anticipations of its most earnest advocates. We invite for this thread a thorough trial by all directly interested in SPOOL COTTON.

Life Insurance Company
OF NEW YORK

We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to the remarkably strong statement made by that sound and well conducted institution, the National Life Insurance Company, which may be found in their advertisement in another column. The Company has been able to declare dividends this year, after making ample reserves to meet any possible contingencies, of fifty per cent, on life policies, and of thirty five per cent. on endowment policies. One of the excellent characteristics of the National Life is that of non forfeiture of all policies, on the principle of non forfeiture adopted by the Massachusetts companies.

[The 'INSURANCE SPECTATOR' says of the NATIONAL]
"In all its plans we observe a positive and unmistakable evidence of an intention to extend to policy holders the utmost liberality consistent with safety. Its ratio of reserved assets to actual liabilities, is larger than that of some of the oldest companies. It aims to get business without resorting to false pretenses. It regards QUALITY AND PRUDENCE more than mere volume of business; thus, it has been enabled to avoid many of the extravagances which are too often the condition of a sudden and rapid growth, and to pay dividends to its policy holders equal to that of the largest and most successful companies—never having paid less than FIFTY PER CENT. on Life Policies and THIRTY-FIVE PER CENT on Endowment and it has always PAID IT, and not merely DECLARED IT. We repeat, then, emphatically, that the NATIONAL is a good company to insure in—SOUND, ECONOMICAL, AND LIBERAL."

From Hayti

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.

A Port au Prince letter of the 16th inst. states that all the northern parts of the island, from Port Liborate to Cape Haytien, and to Larcabaie, a village within 18 miles of the capital, is now in the hands of the revolutionists.

The village of Larcbaie was taken by the insurgents on Friday, Dec. 10, by assault, in which both the land and sea forces took part. The insurgents are now directing their operations against Petit Goune, Grand Goune and Leo Goune, the only three remaining ports in the possession of Salnave.

Flying rumors at the capital, on the 13th inst., reported that these places had been taken by the revolutionists; This report, however, needs confirmation. When these places are captured the capital can be besieged on both sides, and its fall cannot then be much prolonged. Should Salnave, however, receive the ram Atlanta, now daily expected, he may be able to roll back the tide of conquest for a time, but as an overwhelming majority of the nation is against him his fall at no distant day, in spite of all extraneous success is inevitable.

The foreign consuls have protested against the blockade of Port au Prince, and the blockade exists against Haytien market boats

Important Decision

NEW YORK, Dec 28

A very important case to stock brokers was decided in the Court of Appeals yesterday, and a precedent has finally been fixed upon a much disputed question. The substance of the decision is that a broker who sells out his customer's stock after his margin is gone, but without giving him notice of the time and place of the sale, is liable to the customer for the highest price of stock down to the time of the trial, because the customer owns the stock, and the act of the broder is a wrongful commission. This was a test case, selected by the Brokers' Board.

ST. LOUIS, Dec 28

A meeting was held last evening by the committee recently appointed to consider the project of holding a World's Fair here in 1871. After considerable discussion of the various plans it was finally resolved that the holding of such a fair was not only feasible but practicable and desirable.—A committee was appointed to draft articles of incorporation for a World's Fair Association, with a capital stock of $1,000,000, to be submitted to a mass meeting to be held at the Southern Hotel, January 30th, at which the inauguration and perfection of arrangements for holding such a fair will be made.

Co-operation—Real and Sham.

The latest hobby for those who so persistently ride that omnipresent article is "co operation." From its legitimate use, from its practical application to industries and enterprises that demand more than individual effort, it has been stretched to various applications as impracticable as the attempt to establish values by legislation.

Co operation to a certain extent is a necessity in a country like ours. Political parties, religious movements, moral reforms and extensive business enterprises and innovations, demand the agency of co-operation to insure success. We believe also that co-operation among mechanics and other industrial classes is to say the least greatly beneficial in raising the standard of intelligence and in establishing the importance and safety of their various callings. In short, for almost every work of a public nature, concerning equally different parts of extensive communities, but not interferring with social relations or private business habits, co-operation is wholesome or necessary as the case may be.

But the attempt widely made to carry the principle into every calling and sphere of life is ridiculous and must prove abortive Beyond the actual demand for more capital and more directing energy, co-operation in business is impossible to the nature of man. To advocate the general adoption of "communities" in interest and labor is simply to assert that men and women are all equally dolts, and that ambition is not the natural motive for action in the human race; it is to suppose that every man is satisfied with the medium condition, and that bread and butter and decent clothing are the sole objects of labor. The nature of man is the exact contrary of this, and the number ever satisfied with equal division of labor and profits is too small to be worthy of consideration. No matter what the possibilities of success, ninety-nine one-hundredths of the men and women of this country would never submit to a condition of things which necessitates to a certain extent the smothering of ambition for wealth and power; they would prefer one chance in five of success in open competition. And we would not have it otherwise. What would the world be worth were all willing to submit to this levelling process which must finally lead to carelessness and other demoralization in the people who adopt it? Without competition and emulation in the various walks of life, what but a monotonous hum-drum would our existence establish? Under the artificial creation of co-operation life would surely not be what it was intended, and the "community" system must die before its authors gain sufficient strength to blow breath into its feeble lungs.

But the consummation of folly in this co-operative hobby is included in the desire to carry the principle still farther, and to invade the social circle and the household regulations. Co-operative housekeeping is the popular cry in some quarters. The theoretical dreamers who are always in search of some new stretch of common sense, profess to have discovered that the men and women of this age can only be happy by surrendering all natural divisions of families; their fruitful imaginations see visions of bliss in every person knowing what every other person enjoys of worldly luxuries, and in equal participation in kitchen products. They forget that enforced co-operation is no co-operation at all, and that it is only beneficial and necessary where it grows naturally from the demands of any class or enterprise. Men are not willing to divide their household idols with their neighbors, and women are not anxious to expose their household labors to the gaze of the public, nor will they ever be till the social circle is entirely subverted to the demands of these social levellers who manufacture arbitrary systems of life because life is a failure to themselves. Such people must learn before long that co-operative housekeeping and all co-operation that invades the kitchen, the nursery and the fireside is as supremely ridiculous as would be dreams of co-operative affection or co-operative happiness.

The Richmond Whig, in the ordinary line of Democratic growls, mentions some of the ill results from the postponement of the admission of Virginia. When Congress assembled, it says, the manifestations in favor of "the prompt admission of Virginia," were so striking and so kindly that a glow of good feeling spread all through the masses of her population, and in this state of generous fervor, all disagreeable recollections were cast aside. But all at once a chill came over everything. "We have been chilled and disappointed, and feel that we do not deserve the snubbing we have received. The members of Congress, as well as ourselves, would have felt better and happier had they entered upon the season of Christmas with the inspiring consciousness that they had given old Virginia back to the Union."

But the Whig in another article snubs itself somewhat, and it seems to us partially justifies Congress in careful delays. Virginia, it says, is as much indebted to the unwise conduct pursued in Georgia and the wild freaks of the Tennessee Legislature for the hitch in her admission as to the "cold malignity of some of the political wire-workers and managers at Washington." "Our Georgia and Tennessee friends," it says again, "instead of benefitting themselves, have seriously harmed us."

In the latter conclusion the Whig is undoubtedly correct. Congress and the Republican party have been liberally disposed towards the South, but wherever we have been in haste to reinvest rebels with their former power, the rebels have as hastily proceeded to abuse confidence and to outrage decency. Congress is not disposed to accept the promises of Virginia till satisfied that they are not after the Georgia pattern. The unrepentant rebels have warned us against themselves. We have the utmost confidence that Congress will do what is right and do it just as early as safety admits. When Virginia and Mississippi and Texas are sincerely reconstructed, and have no appearance of attempting to come in by stealth like Georgia, there is no doubt of their being immediately invested with full powers.

The women of America will not be grieved to learn that two of the women's rights societies in New York which claimed to be their special champions are dead. The statement would appear antithetical, but for the fact that those societies have so outrageously misrepresented the sentiments of our better class of women as to hold them up to universal ridicule. The crisis of that which was feared as a demoralizing element in our social fabric has passed The public has too long been fed upon the high sounding notes of the ambitious women, whose claim of "rights" amounted to literal assumption, not to know thoroughly the hollowness of vanity of their "cause," and the public is now putting its seal upon them. The subsidence of the female demagogues before the popular verdict gives hope, therefore, that the real wrongs of woman may receive more candid attention and more practical treatment than could ever be hoped from the charlatans that ever attend the late frequent conventional termagancy

The Boston Advertiser suggests that "ruling families" are not common in the United States. The most remarkable case is probably that of the Adamses, three generations of whom have held very high positions in the national government, with possibilities in favor of the fourth generation. Two brothers of the late Senator Fessenden have served in the lower House of Congress, and the Washburn brothers of Maine, Illinois, Wisconsin, and California, are perhaps the next best examples, unless the Bayards of Delaware be preferred But England presents at least one instance of simultaneous service by several members of a single family that outdoes them all The Duke of Abercorn, the head of the house of Hamilton, sits in the House of Peers His brother, Lord Claud Hamilton, is a member of Parliament for Tyrone The Duke has three sons in the same assembly, the Marquis of Hamilton represents Donegal, Lord George Hamilton sits for Middlesex County, and Lord Claud John has just been elected member for King's Lynn, to succeed Lord Stanley, who goes to the House of Lords as the Earl of Derby.

THE RED RIVER REBELLION A special dispatch from St. Paul, dated Monday, says letters have been received from Pembina to the 16th inst. The discomfiture or failure of Col. Dennis, of McDougall's staff, to collect and arm the Indians, saved the lives of McDougall and his suite. Had a single half breed been killed every one of the Canadian party would have been murdered.—It seems that Col. Dennis got back to the Governor's house on the evening of the 15th The insurgents were after him, but he got safely away. A letter says that death had been decreed to Col. Dennis if captured — This is in revenge for Dennis' efforts to influence the Indians. The same letter says that a newspaper is to be published in the interest of the insurgents and will make its appearance on the 20th inst. McDougall and suite, having given up all hopes of ever delivering the promised land, are preparing to get away their baggage and would leave on the 17th, and the party would leave between the 17th and 20th. The insurgents will then be left in peaceful and quiet possession of their country.

Mr. Charles A. Dana prints in his own paper a sketch of the late Mr. Stanton, including many scraps of personal reminiscence. He says, among other things, that Mr. Stanton was impatient with levity when serious business was in hand, and was vehemently indignant because President Lincoln read aloud bits of Nasby's letters while waiting for the returns of his own second election. Mr. Dana thus describes the scene when at the time of the assassination of Mr. Lincoln and the attack on Mr. Seward the whole burden of the administration fell upon the Secretary of War:

"Though his soul was bowed with grief at the assassination of his friend and his country's benefactor, he did not neglect for a moment the duties of the hour. Sitting in the anteroom of the dying President, with several adjutants and assistants to aid, he gave in a low voice all necessary orders; took measures for the pursuit of the assassins and the detection of their accomplices; sent telegrams to military commanders in every direction; wrote with his own hand despatches for our ministers abroad; provided for the public security at all doubtful points; thought of everything and did everything with a wisdom and fertility never surpassed. Next day Vice President Johnson took the oath of office as President, and his first act, most becomingly performed, was earnestly to thank the Secretary of War for all that he had accomplished during that memorable night, and to ask him, while they held each other by the hand, to stand by him as he had stood by Mr Lincoln. Mr. Stanton promised, and kept his word as long as Mr. Johnson kept Mr. Lincoln's principles"

The article gives an account of a project to give Mr. Stanton, after he had retired from office, poor in purse and broken in health, a testimonial of $100,000, contributed by some wealthy merchants of New York. Judge Pierrepont was sent to Washington to induce Mr. Stanton to receive the gift.

"He first broached the subject to Mrs Stanton, who replied that she did not believe her husband would receive the present

"Mrs. Stanton said she would mention it to him on the first favorable opportunity Mr. Stanton was in the next room, and probably overheard the conversation. Judge Pierrepont then went in to see him He was sitting as an invalid in his arm chair

"'He received me,' said Judge Pierrepont, 'with his old kind smile, and although very feeble made an attempt to rise to shake hands. I conversed with him on different subjects, but I did not make allusion to our project of presenting him with a purse. Finally I arose to take my leave. I was just about to open the door, when he said

"'"Pierrepont, come back; I have something to say to you."

"'I returned. Having taken a seat by his side, he gently laid his hand upon my shoulder, and looking me straight in the face, feelingly said:

"'"I have always regarded you as my friend, Pierrepont. You are going away now, and I may never see you again I am, as you see, upon a bed of sickness, from which I may never rise. I want you do me a favor. When you go back to New York, tell my friends there and elsewhere not to raise any money or other gifts for me, for I must refuse them all They have my thanks for their kind intentions, but I can never and will never accept a cent as a gift from even my best friend."

"'I promised to comply with his request,' continued Mr. Pierrepont, 'and the result was that the project was abandoned'"

Col. Forney, in an editorial in the columns of the Chronicle, pays an eloquent tribute to the memory of the departed Secretary, whom he knew so intimately. Regarding his death, the editorial says.—

"The life of Edwin M. Stanton has been as truly laid down for our country as ever was that of soldier who fell in the sweep of the victorious field or of prisoner who starved in the miserable swamps of Andersonville When he entered the Cabinet at the call of Mr. Buchanan, he entered it a hale, vigorous man, sound in body and strong in constitution, as good and able as any recruit that ever passed the examining surgeon. He left it a shattered and broken old man—old before the years had crowned him; and now, at 54, a time when other men are girding their loins for the great struggle of life, he is wasted by a breath and sinks as the flower that falleth at noonday Just as true an offering was his life, and just as sacrificial as that of countless legions of the armies of our dead, and his memory will be as dear and as sacred and as lasting.

This solemn death, too, is eminently typical and completes and rounds the great trinity of sacrifice which we have been called on to bear.

Lincoln was the representative of the heart, Stanton of the intellect and brain power; the soldiery of the arms of the people. All have been laid upon the altar. The soldier, Lincoln. Stanton, the emblematic martyrs of the field, the home and the forum.

The pall that covers them covers the nation, and as we gaze today into the coffin of Edwin M. Stanton, and sadly add his honored name to the list of the great names who have died that the republic might live, we reverently pray that it may be the last."

According to the complaint of the chief speaker, (Miss Collins) in old times the girls were treated like human beings, but lately the cotton kings had become more avaricious, and in their wild rush for wealth had forgotten all honor, and forsaken every feeling of humanity." She went on to say that the factory girls were worse off than the black women of the South. She also remarked that while Mrs Surratt was executed, Horace Greeley came forward to bail Jefferson Davis—"such a discrepancy was a strong argument for woman suffrage."

New Style of Photograph. [Patent Applied for.] S. W. SAWYER Has invented an enamel which does not mark, scratch or rub off, neither will water or acid dissolve it. Said enamel brings out all the middle tints or very fine shadows, and imparts to the Photograph a beautiful finish which has never before been produced by any process. Photographs treated with this enamel must be very permanent, for the picture is perfectly protected from air or dampness, and, certainly we never had anything that gave so beautiful a finish to our Photographs before. dec28 sn

A CARD. REMOVAL. We extend our cordial thanks to the citizens of the Penobscot Valley for the large and liberal patronage which they have bestowed on our enterprise during the year now closing. Their appreciation of our efforts to establish in this city a first class Tea and Coffee Store, manifested by bountiful purchases, has compelled us greatly to enlarge our business and to seek better and more commodious accommodations We have accordingly leased and fitted up in splendid style one of the new and elegant Stores on West Market Square, Where we are prepared to welcome our thousands of old customers, and to extend a cordial greeting to the tens of thousands of new from every part of Eastern and Middle Maine As heretofore, our goods will continue to be best the markets of the world afford, and our prices will be as low as the lowest. By honorable and upright dealing, we have built up in a single year an almost unprecedented large trade; and by strict adherence to the same principle, we expect to merit and receive the confidence and patronage of the public for long years to come Respectfully, your obedient servants, CHINA TEA COMPANY. dec4 sndw

Consumption. The Three Remedies, "SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP," for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and every form of Consumption. The peculiar action of this medicine ripens the ulcers in the lungs, promotes the discharge of the corrupt matter by expectoration, purifies the blood, and thus cures Consumption, when every other remedy fails. "SCHENCK'S SEA-WEED TONIC," for the cure of Dyspepsia or Indigestion, and all diseases arising from debility. This tonic invigorates the digestive organs, supplies the place of the gastric juice when that is deficient, and then enables the patient to digest the most nutritious food. It is a sovereign remedy for all cases of indigestion. "SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS," one of the most valuable medicines ever discovered, being a vegetable substitute for calomel, and having all the useful properties ascribed to the mineral, without producing any of its injurious effects. To these three medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck, of Philadelphia, owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of Pulmonary Consumption. The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter, discharges it, and purifies the blood The Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, remove all obstructions therefrom, give the organs a healthy tone, and cures Liver Complaint, which is one of the most prominent causes of Consumption. The Sea weed Tonic invigorates the powers of the stomach, and by strengthening the digestion and bringing it to a normal and healthy condition improves the quality of the blood, by which means the formation of ulcers or tubercles in the lungs becomes impossible. The combined action of these medicines, are thus explained will cure every case of Consumption, if the remedies are used in time, and the use of them is persevered in sufficiently to bring the case to a favorable termination. Dr. Schenck's Almanac, containing a full treatise on the various forms of disease, his mode of treatment, and general directions how to use his medicine, can be had gratis or sent by mail by addressing his Principal Office, No. 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, Pa. Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Sea-Weed Tonic, each, $1 50 per bottle, or $7 50 the half dozen; Mandrake Pills 25 cents per box. For sale by all druggists and dealers. J. H. SCHENCK, M.D. Jan 27 1y sn

The Emperor counts on the devotion of the Corps Legislatif to great interests of the country, no less than on that of M. Ollivier, to aid him in the task he has undertaken—that of putting into successful operation a constitutional regimen.

Paris, Dec. 28. The new session of the Corps Legislatif commenced to-day. M. Schneider was re-elected President by a vote of 190 to 40.

They deny the reports that Gov McDougall had anything to do with arming the Indians or inciting them to rise.—They believe the mass of the inhabitants at first favored Gov. McDougall, but they were afterwards deceived and controlled by a few designing men who misrepresented McDougall's mission.

A St. Paul dispatch commenting on the Red River news received from New York to-day, says the report that squads of fillibusters are to be passed over the railroads within 200 miles of the British borders is a fabrication, as the nearest railroad point is 400 miles from the border, and forced marches with the ground covered with snow and mercury from 10 to 30 degrees below zero is not probable. SHIPWRECK OF THE BRIG METEOR OF BOSTON AND INHUMAN TREATMENT BY THE LIGHT HOUSE KEEPER Mr. W. N. Miller, a passenger on board the brig Meteor, has furnished the following report of the disaster to that vessel

The Meteor sailed from Hayti Dec 4th for Boston, under command of Capt Raynes and had a very boisterous passage for seven teen days, having been during this time very short handed, caused by sickness on board Block Island Light was made on the eighteenth day, and the course shaped for Point Judith A strong westerly current, however, carried the brig to the west of the point and breakers were made under the vessel's lee, but not in time to escape—It may be here added that, having lost the fore topsail and split the staysail, they intended to put into Newport Both anchors were let go, but after two hours, the gale increasing, the best bower chain parted, and the brig was fast dragging ashore, when the other chain was slipped, and she went broad-side on, about four miles west of the light house on Point Judith. The weather was thick, with the wind S. E. All hands reaching one pass over were landed safely in the surf, being as wet as water could make them. The mates and crew were provided with comfortable quarters by Mr. E. G. Knowles who did all in his power to aid them in their unfortunate circumstance.—Mr. Whalen, the keeper of the Light House, invited the captain and the passenger to his house, but in course of conversation having learned that there had been some fever on board the brig during the first part of the voyage, Mr. Whalen insisted upon their leaving his house in a cold rain storm about 8½ o'clock at night He was expostulated with and assured that there was no danger from fever, as all were in good health, and begged him to allow them to remain in the engine room of the light house to dry their clothing, but all was of no avail, they were turned out, and conducted through the rain to fisherman's shanty about two and a half miles distant, where they found no occupants, and neither fire nor light, and the wind and rain beating through every crack, without bed or bedding. They were obliged to walk to and fro all night to keep from perishing

Such treatment would not be strange in an uncivilized land; but on our own shores it seems as if such conduct needed some thing more than a passing rebuke and ought to be noticed by those in authority
